Who We Are

Gardens of the Fox Cities is a 38 acre botanical garden and has been open as a horticultural and recreational resource to the Fox Valley region since 1996. The Gardens has a Taliesin designed Scheig Learning Center. The Taliesin firm includes architects trained by world-renowned, Wisconsin-born architect, Frank Lloyd Wright. The Center is named after Henry Scheig, the former president, chief executive officer, and chairman of the board of Thrivent Financial.

The purpose of the Gardens is to help people recognize, understand, and appreciate plants native to Wisconsin and their role in the environment. Youth and adult educational programs in gardening, horticulture, ecology and natural history provide year-round learning opportunities for all ages.

The Gardens offer a unique venue for year-round special events such as business meetings, retirement parties and weddings. The Gardens is a 501 (c) (3) nonprofit organization and receives no tax dollars.

Admission to the Gardens is free to the public. Funding for the Gardens comes from private and corporate memberships, grants, special events, facility rentals and programs. The gardens are open for the public to enjoy from dawn until dusk and is located within Appleton Memorial Park.
